

Friends and neighbors toss surprise birthday party for Everett Weeks

BELMONT — Belmont friends and neighbors surprised Everett Weeks on his 79th birthday with a party on Main Street at The Hungry Dog hot dog stand. Signature dish of the new business was featured, along with birthday cake, and a lifetime Belmont Historical Society membership presented by Town Historian Wallace Rhodes.

Susan Houle read a congratulatory letter from U.S. Senator Kelly Ayotte, recognizing his dedicated national service as a member of the United States Army and hoping "as you reflect on years passed you will be warmed by many wonderful memories." The self-described steward of the long-held family farms and its Depot Street house, have been home to Everett since he was born. Over 25 people attended sharing stories and respect for a long-revered resident.
