Belmont Old Home Day to be on first Sat. in August

BELMONT — Belmont’s Old Home Day is being moved up one week beginning this year, organizers have announced.

This community celebration has traditionally been held on the second Saturday of August. However, at the request of the town’s selectmen, the 2015 gathering will move to the first Saturday of August. This will eliminate the conflict of the town’s largest community event falling on the same weekend as the Belknap County Fair, as well as the more recent conflict with SoulFest held at Gunstock in Gilford.

A large draw for Belmont’s Old Home Day each summer is the Road Race. Under the new schedule the Road Race will continue to take place on the second Saturday of August — one week after Old Home Day. Jeff Roberts, race director, has kicked around the idea of expanding on the success of the road race for the last few years. The request to change the date for Old Home Day has given Roberts an opportunity to pursue a morning filled with various types of running events and to grow the day into its own draw of visitors to Belmont.

With the assistance of Greta Olson-Wilder, Special Event Coordinator, a second 10-mile race course was recently certified which will be used for a fun relay race. Similar to the traditional 10-Mile, the new course will start on Concord Street and will incorporate Wareing South, Jamestown, Union, and Hurricane Roads and will end at the same finish line on Main Street.

The road races and other activities will be held Saturday, Aug. 8, and will include events for athletes of all ages. Plans are also underway to provide space for vendors related to the day’s events and food concessions to fuel athletes and spectators.

Leaving the road race on the traditional second Saturday in August will provide a fresh look at Old Home Day, scheduled for Saturday, Aug. 1. This year’s theme is “The Good Old Days.”

In the past, vendors needed to be set up so that fiction, poetry, or family histories -- and Maxwell will work with those writers one-on-one to revise work and improve writing skills. She is also available for any stage of the writing process, from initial brainstorming to an actual draft.

This program is open to all Gilford Public Library cardholders. Those wanting more information can contact the Gilford Public Library at abh@gilfordlibrary.org or (603) 524-6042.

Why hasn’t your home sold yet?

Maybe the price is set to high and people will not even make an offer for fear of being to low and rejected.

Maybe the price is to low and the right buyers are not even looking in this price range.

Maybe the home is dated, cluttered or has some other unappealing issues. Many of which can be addressed easily and inexpensively.

Maybe the home is not advertised to the right target market for that type of home.

Maybe it is the individual efforts or lack of specific efforts in representing the property. Sometimes a change is good. Maybe it’s time to try something new.
