Historical projects, people honored

PETERBOROUGH — The Association of Historical Societies of New Hampshire honored nine projects and people at a ceremony at the Peterborough Historical Society on Oct. 23.

These awards pay tribute to outstanding examples of preserving, interpreting or promoting appreciation and understanding of an aspect of New Hampshire history.

The 2010 awards are:

— Carol Christian and the Walpole Historical Society's costume rescue project for outstanding collections management;

— The Exeter Historical Society's Lincoln in Exeter Sesquicentennial Celebration for outstanding public education and programs;

— Paula Robbins Page and the Westmoreland Historical Society's A Historical Tour of Westmoreland for outstanding public education and programs;

— Strawberry Banke Museum's N.H. History Explorers Program for outstanding public education and programs;

— Partners Around Lake Sunapee (PALS) Collaborative for outstanding public education and programs;

— Hopkinton Historical Society's Cemetery Walk for outstanding public education and programs;

— Jeff Dalzell and the Hopkinton Historical Society's Talent and Luck: Walking in Fellowship with Deacon Philip Brown exhibit for outstanding public education and programs;

— Toppan's History of Hampton: The Early Settler by Lori White Cotter for outstanding research and documentation;

— Wallace Rhodes for excellence in documenting, promoting and preserving Belmont's history.
