BELMONT — This spring, there’s been a lot of activity on Belmont’s Lake Winnisquam Scenic Trail. Volunteers from Belmont’s Penstock Gardeners, Belknap County’s Recovery Court and Restorative Justice Programs and others recently planted more than 100 trees and shrubs and wildflower seed along the “Winni” Trail. The trees, shrubs and seeds were donated by the Belknap County Conservation District (BCCD) to improve wildlife habitat and enhance the experience for trail users. Volunteers planted trees and shrubs which produce fruit and seeds valuable for wildlife— including apple and cherry trees, native dogwood, elderberry, service berry, chokeberr- y, sumac, sugar maple, dogwood, elderberry, which produce fruit and seeds were donated to the Belknap County Conservation District (BCCD) to improve wildlife habitat and enhance the experience for trail users. Volunteers planted trees and shrubs which produce fruit and seeds valuable for wildlife— including apple and cherry trees, native dogwood, elderberry, service berry, chokeberry, sumac, sugar maple, dogwood, elderberry, which produce fruit and seeds.  These volunteers include Matt Andrews, Matt Boynton, Tarria Bruno, Patrick O’Connor and John Cotterill.

“Trent young people and the Penstock Gardeners can take pride in seeing their efforts improve the trail’s habitat and natural setting,” said Hoag.

Dee La Plante was recently appointed an Associate Supervisor on the Belknap County Conservation District Board. "Dee showed such a strong interest in our conservation mission and leading crests to do conservation projects that we invited him join our Board. We’re always looking for volunteers to help us on conservation projects," said Hoag. Volunteers are needed on June 24 for a Work Day on the Watiank Boardwalk at Gunstock Mountain Resort. For more information go to wetlandswalk@myfairpoint.net. “There’s no better opportunity to donate to the Wetlands Conservation effort,” said Hoag. The Penstock Gardeners, Belknap County’s Recovery Court and Restorative Justice Programs and others recently planted more than 100 trees and shrubs and wildflower seed along the “Winni” Trail. The trees, shrubs and seeds were donated to the Belknap County Conservation District (BCCD) to improve wildlife habitat and enhance the experience for trail users. Volunteers planted trees and shrubs which produce fruit and seeds valuable for wildlife— including apple and cherry trees, native dogwood, elderberry, service berry, chokeberry, sumac, sugar maple, dogwood, elderberry, which produce fruit and seeds.  These volunteers include Matt Andrews, Matt Boynton, Tarria Bruno, Patrick O’Connor and John Cotterill.

“Their young people and the Penstock Gardeners can take pride in seeing their efforts improve the trail’s habitat and natural setting,” said Hoag. Dee La Plante was recently appointed an Associate Supervisor on the Belknap County Conservation District Board. “Dee showed such a strong interest in our conservation mission and leading crests to do conservation projects that we invited him join our Board. We’re always looking for volunteers to help us on conservation projects,” said Hoag. Volunteers are needed on June 24 for a Work Day on the Watiank Boardwalk at Gunstock Mountain Resort. For more information go to wetlandswalk@myfairpoint.net. “There’s no better opportunity to donate to the Wetlands Conservation effort,” said Hoag. The Penstock Gardeners, Belknap County’s Recovery Court and Restorative Justice Programs and others recently planted more than 100 trees and shrubs and wildflower seed along the “Winni” Trail. The trees, shrubs and seeds were donated to the Belknap County Conservation District (BCCD) to improve wildlife habitat and enhance the experience for trail users. Volunteers planted trees and shrubs which produce fruit and seeds valuable for wildlife— including apple and cherry trees, native dogwood, elderberry, service berry, chokeberry, sumac, sugar maple, dogwood, elderberry, which produce fruit and seeds.  These volunteers include Matt Andrews, Matt Boynton, Tarria Bruno, Patrick O’Connor and John Cotterill.

“Their young people and the Penstock Gardeners can take pride in seeing their efforts improve the trail’s habitat and natural setting,” said Hoag. Dee La Plante was recently appointed an Associate Supervisor on the Belknap County Conservation District Board. “Dee showed such a strong interest in our conservation mission and leading crests to do conservation projects that we invited him join our Board. We’re always looking for volunteers to help us on conservation projects,” said Hoag. Volunteers are needed on June 24 for a Work Day on the Watiank Boardwalk at Gunstock Mountain Resort. For more information go to wetlandswalk@myfairpoint.net. “There’s no better opportunity to donate to the Wetlands Conservation effort,” said Hoag. The Penstock Gardeners, Belknap County’s Recovery Court and Restorative Justice Programs and others recently planted more than 100 trees and shrubs and wildflower seed along the “Winni” Trail. The trees, shrubs and seeds were donated to the Belknap County Conservation District (BCCD) to improve wildlife habitat and enhance the experience for trail users. Volunteers planted trees and shrubs which produce fruit and seeds valuable for wildlife— including apple and cherry trees, native dogwood, elderberry, service berry, chokeberry, sumac, sugar maple, dogwood, elderberry, which produce fruit and seeds.  These volunteers include Matt Andrews, Matt Boynton, Tarria Bruno, Patrick O’Connor and John Cotterill. The Lake Winnisquam Improvement Association is putting the finishing touches on this year’s annual motorcycle week. Motorcycle Week will take place in the old Town Hall in Sanbornville beginning June 24. Visit the website at www.pinecommunitycenter.com. The Pavement Pump & Filter Co. Inc. Family Owned Business for 40 Years 87 Main St. Belmont, NH (603) 629-9775 FAX (603) 629-9775 New Items Call for Serviceorrect@NEMoves.com TRACIE CORBETT (603) 387-3457 CELL (603) 524-2255 BUSINESS (603) 524-2255 TRACIECORBETT@NEMoves.com